Subject: Meeting with Connolly

Greg Connolly returned my call this morning. He and Howard Saxner, who was on the phone, assured me that the proposed regulations has not yet been published, and that the Department would not publish them until after we had met and had had a chance to discuss them. He agreed to give that assurance in writing, but said that he had to think about how to phrase it, because he did not want others to raise criticisms or legal concerns.

He appeared eager to meet, and agreed to a one and one half day meeting to cover both benchmarking and other issues. He noted that Mike Borgerding had been asked at the IOM what the utility of the benchmark data would be, and he stated that that issue remains to be discussed. He first proposed July 10, 11, or 12, but then said he would have to check those dates, and called back to say that the soonest they could do it was July 17 and 18. Connolly would prefer to meet in Boston. He might consider using Henry's office. I agreed to check availability on those dates. He suggested starting the meeting at about 10 am to allow people to fly in in the morning. His list of possible attendees included essentially all of the attendees at the last meeting in Boston (including Dr. Huang), and Peter Boyle, who he said is working on the European directive. He said he would send me a proposed list.

Please let me know at your earliest convenience whether these dates are acceptable. I told Connolly I would try to confirm in the next day or two. Thanks.
